JARBOE

Ex-SWANS singer on her upcoming solo set

Tell us about your latest project.
It was conceived as a stimulus for visualisation practice and walking meditation. I had the idea on a hiking trip.
What film could it soundtrack?
Bugonia.
Is there anything still unissued?
A large back-up of experiments made while exploring vocal phrasing and effects, many on cassettes.
Have you done anything that fans may not know about?
A voice for a cartoon episode, and music for an award-winning game. I participated in a party scene in the Vanilla Sky movie.
With whom would you like to make a split 7"?
Warren Ellis, a fearless explorer who takes risks.
Where were you when you first heard one of your songs on vinyl?
In the multilevel nightclub, Palladium, New York, through the massive sound system – SWANS' Time Is Money, 1986.
What was your first record?
The Mothers Of Invention Absolutely Free.
What's the last album that you bought?
Max Richter Hamnet.
Was anyone in your family a musician?
My great aunt – she played music professionally – and my father, as a hobby.
Have you ever collected anyone?
Tricky, Kendrick Lamar, Pink Floyd, Popol Vuh, Arvo Pärt, Henryk Górecki, Max Richter, Philip Glass, Ornette Coleman.
What backstage incident makes you laugh most?
On my final SWANS tour, Michael Gira and I decided to appear nude onstage after a show in Brussels. We were on the side, taking off our clothes, when the lights came on! We gave up on the idea.
Which LP, on first listen, is the most startling you ever heard?
Lou Reed Metal Machine Music.
Which of your former homes should have a blue plaque?
93, Avenue B, East Village, New York, where we rehearsed, and Michael and I lived.

Jarboe* Sightings *is on Consouling Sounds, 3 April.

Jarboe

Interview: Joel McIver

Jarboe Devereaux, the experimental musician and former member of the art-rock band Swans, has never revealed her age, but it's reasonable to assume that she was born in the latter half of the 1960s. Raised in the southern states of the USA, she moved to New York to join Swans, led by Michael Gira, in 1985 and remained a key (and mononymous) participator, until they split in 1997. The group's reductively confrontational music gained them a cult following that expanded on their reformation in 2010, although Jarboe was not invited to take part. By then she had launched an equally left-field solo career, attracting collaborators such as Pantera frontman Phil Anselmo and the band Neurosis. Other projects include Viscera and J2, but her large solo catalogue, including her most recent album Sightings, is her primary focus. We meet Jarboe on a Zoom call as she prepares to tour the new album in the UK.

"I didn't think my age is relevant. I've tried to keep my family and relatives out of what I do"

It says on the press release that Sightings is the 55th release you've been on.
I think it's probably more than that, because they're not counting the old days pre-Swans, and a lot of collaborations have been released under another person's name, but I still had a lot of input into them. So it's at least 55. The reason why I haven't had three more albums out before this one is because I had a sports injury: I broke the wrist of my right hand, so I wasn't able to play the keyboard until I'd had surgery and physical therapy.

You've talked about following a super-athletic lifestyle to keep your lungs strong for singing.
Yes. The whole athletic thing started when I did yoga through school and then I started bodybuilding and weightlifting. I was working out at the gym for five hours a day. I had a buzz-cut and I was straight-edge and really athletic. Actually, that's what led to Swans, because I was pumping iron to their first album, Filth (1983), so I decided to interview them for my art zine. They let me sit in on a rehearsal and I was so impressed. It was unlike anything I'd ever heard, and that's when I decided I wanted to be part of it. After I came back home to Atlanta, I stayed in touch with Michael, and they invited me on their first European tour in 1984 to be a roadie. I carried things and helped people get up the stairs at the end of the night, because I was reliable and I didn't drink and I didn't smoke and I didn't do drugs.

Are you still straight-edge now?
I would say so, yeah. The only thing that's changed is that once in a while, I'll have a glass of biodynamic white wine from Austria. It's very low alcohol, like seven or eight per cent. But everything else, no.

From the outside, Swans looked like a crazy band to be in. Was it?
Well, the last tour was extremely intense. There was this party after the London show at the Columbia Hotel, and it was not only the after-tour party, it was the 'after Swans' party, right? To me, that was bittersweet. All these interesting people were there, like Nick Cave and Michael Hutchence from INXS. It was a wonderful event for everyone, except for me, because I didn't see any reason to be celebrating. I saw everyone getting wasted, and I don't do that, and then some fans came and crashed it. These boys were running around, chasing me and wanting to touch me and push me against the wall, and I had to get out of there, so I walked out to the lobby where our roadie, Hank Fury, was packing up the gear. My friend told Hank what had happened, and he went in there and beat everybody up. The next morning, we were supposed to leave early to get to the airport, and I had to wake people up: everybody was completely trashed because they partied all night long. I had to be the mother, which is something I did so often in Swans. I had to say, "Come on, let's go!" In hindsight, maybe I should have said goodbye and let them figure it out.

Was it upsetting when they reformed in 2010 without you?
I was devastated, because people that never even did live shows with us were credited as an "honorary Swan" and that kind of thing, I was deeply hurt by that. I thought, "Well, if you don't want me on the road, then you could at least invite me to participate in recordings once in a while, and I could be honorary or whatever" but except for a little bit on [Swans' 2012 album] The Seer, I was never asked. So yeah, I won't lie, it was a brutal, brutal experience. I think I went through a kind of PTSD for a long time. It was hard, because I had all these memories come surging forward from all those years. I had worked so hard and I had been through so much in that project... That was a very rough patch for me for a while, with nightmares and feeling sick to my stomach all the time. It was just so weird, so weird.

Your solo catalogue speaks for itself, though.
Yeah, there's been some incredible highlights, like playing in Tasmania. I'd do that again in a heartbeat. I fit right in down there with the people at the Museum Of Old And New Art. I even fantasise about moving to Tasmania. For some reason, that place just felt right.

Your tours are less hectic now, I assume.
Well, a criterion for me is no drugs, no smoking, no drinking problems, and also completely celibate. No messing around. I don't want to wake up and say [to my band], "Where did you go?" and knock on a hotel door, which I did many times in Swans, and then some girl opens the door. That's not something I will tolerate anymore. I'm very strict.

I hope this isn't a rude question, Jarboe. Your age is not known. Is that because you've chosen to keep it private?
I don't think it's relevant, and I've tried to keep my family and my relatives out of what I do. I don't think that anyone in my family wants anything to do with this life, or this world. A lot of them are deeply religious, and they wouldn't understand that in art, you portray someone, but that's not you. I'm just trying to be protective of my relatives.

Well, you've succeeded. No one knows anything about your family or your private life.
Well, that's good. That's very good.

hatte. Möglicherweise liegt das an dem bandtypischen Stilmix aus Garage, Indie, Post-Punk und Noise. JUNCTION klingen wahlweise trocken, rhythmisch, eingängig oder sperrig und mit einer solchen Bandbreite fängt man wahrscheinlich nur die Menschen ein, die auch gerne genreübergreifend Musik hören. Neben gelungenen GIRLS AGAINST BOYS-, FALL-, GANG OF FOUR-, FUGAZI-, SONIC YOUTH- und DIDJITS-Akzenten gefallen mir auch die Flanger-Gitarren – mit Gothic kommt hier ein weiteres Stilelement hinzu. Passend endet dieses kurzweilige Album mit einem Schlusstrack zwischen Indie und Lou Reed.

JARBOE Sightings

Consouling Sounds · consouling.be · 47:53 · Jarboe Devereaux (Geburtsjahr unbekannt) ist vor allem als langjährige Partnerin von Michael Gira bei den SWANS bekannt, mit dem sie auch lange liiert war, und deren Sound sie bis zur Auflösung 1997 stark prägte, alleine schon durch ihren eigenwilligen Gesang. Bei den ab 2010 reformierten SWANS war aber kein Platz mehr für die Tochter zweier FBI-Agenten. Ihr eigenes musikalisches Schaffen während und nach ihrer Zeit bei den SWANS geriet oft etwas in den Hintergrund, zumal Jarboes Platten wie unter dem Namen SKIN (zusammen mit Gira) in den 1980ern deutlich folkloristischer und esoterischer geprägt waren. Seit dem Ende ihrer Beziehung zu Gira hat Jarboe, die auch als Performancekünstlerin aktiv ist, zahlreiche Platten veröffentlicht, darunter auch Kollaborationen mit NEUROSIS und Justin Broadrick. Auch ihr Album „Mahakali" von 2008 wartete mit interessanten Gastauftritten auf wie von MAYHEM-Sänger Attila Csihar, Visual Artist Josh Graham (NEUROSIS, RED SPAROWES) oder Vincent Signorelli (UNSANE). Das Artwork ihres neuen Albums „Sightings" stammt von Phil Puleo, der neben seiner früheren Tätigkeit als Schlagzeuger von SWANS und COP SHOOT COP sein Geld auch mit Tierporträts verdient. Auf dem Cover von „Sightings" ist ein Singvogel namens Vireo zu sehen, der auf dem Album quasi zum Duettpartner von Jarboe wird, die sich hier gesanglich aber erstaunlich zurückhält und unter anderem vom ehemaligen SWANS-Percussionisten Thor Harris unterstützt wird. Dafür wird „Sightings" bestimmt von experimentellen wie minimalistischen Field-Recordings und Dark Ambient/Drone/Neofolk-Klängen, was das Album wie auch andere Werke Jarboes zu einer klanglichen Grenzerfahrung mit außergewöhnlicher Atmosphäre macht.

JACK AND THE BEARDED FISHERMEN Naked

Twenty Something · nineteensomething.fr · 36:16 · „Naked" ist das fünfte Album der französischen Band. Der letzte Longplayer „Playful Winds" erschien 2022 und begeisterte mich damals sehr. Die zehn neuen Songs kommen im hübschen Digipak und auch „Naked" kann man schwer einordnen, Post-Hardcore mit Stoner-Elementen wäre wohl passend. Von der Schwere wie in „The grey" oder „Second shot" und positiven Schwerfälligkeit her erinnern sie mich stellenweise an die MELVINS und an die alten Grunge-Recken FAILURE, wobei „Naked" glatter produziert ist als der Vorgänger. Nichtsdestotrotz: JACK AND THE BEARDED FISHERMEN sind eine dieser Bands und „Naked" ist eine dieser Platten, die unterschwellig eine wahnsinnige Kraft besitzen– ein Bulldozer der subtilen Art.

KÄPT'N PICUS Da geht noch mehr

NRT · nrt-records.bandcamp.com · 29:15 · KÄPT'N PICUS sind eine junge Band aus Köln, die auf dieser EP fünf neue Songs (plus drei alte von 2021) veröffentlicht und deutschsprachigen Punkrock spielt. Der Gesang erinnert mich allerdings gleich beim ersten Song „Ohne Rücksicht auf Verluste" so sehr an Felix Schönfuss von ADAM ANGST und FRAU POTZ, dass ich diesen Eindruck einfach nicht mehr aus dem Kopf bekomme. Aber das muss ja nicht schlimm sein, denn es gibt sicherlich schlechtere Vorbilder, wenn man auf der Suche nach seinem eigenen Weg ist. Die Texte von Sänger Michael behandeln Alltagsthemen, sind nicht platt und wissen durchaus zu gefallen. Die Songs sind melodisch und ausgefeilt, so dass der Fuß automatisch zu wippen beginnt, und irgendwie hat man das Gefühl, dass die Jungs richtig was draufhaben. Den nötigen Drive besitzen die Songs auf alle Fälle und auch Abwechslungsreichtum wird hier großgeschrieben. Leider ist mir der Sound viel zu glatt gebügelt und lässt einiges an Rohheit vermissen, die notwendig wäre, wenn es denn Punk sein

Jarboe
Sightings
Consouling Sounds CD/DL/LP

The 36th solo release from ex-Swans member Jarboe takes as its inspiration "the vireo, a bird whose song is often heard long before its form is seen", according to accompanying information. The little green bird appears on the album cover with startlingly red eyes, which gives it the air of something captured halfway between realism and caricature – an in-between that Jarboe's music more generally is happy to explore.

Jarboe's voice – warbling, deliberately off-key, augmented not in volume but in a ghostly kind of layering – continues this theme via opener "The Holy Waters". It seems to ask: what lies in between the real and the performed? Over ambient electronics, percussion, the uncanny rush of a recording played backwards, her meandering melody is out of kilter with its surroundings, giving the track a faintly supernatural energy.

"Francesca Sun" returns us to more stable tonal footing, with Jarboe's voice more intimate, sensual, meandering around a piano hook over a synth pad and orchestrated strings, accented with chimes. She repeatedly shows us the gap between acoustic instrumentation and electronics: synth strings face off against orchestrated strings. Similarly in "Choir And Night Fox", analogue noises are augmented with depth or resonance that feels imperceptibly technologised. It recalls that eerie mechanical bird in the closing scene of David Lynch's Blue Velvet – a comparison that finds an echo in the red eyes of the bird on the sleeve.

The elusive vireo is heard for the first time at the beginning of "Vireo Serenade". Jarboe mimics it, the piano begins an improvisation based on her mimicry; all three elements sound together in a long, static exploration of that birdsong. For the duration of that one track, the vireo is here with us – then, it's gone again, disappearing into the swell of noise, leaving us wondering if it was ever there at all.

SIGHTINGS
(Consouling Sounds)

La poliedrica cantautrice statunitense, le cui origini risalgono agli anni '80, vanta una formazione frutto di varie esperienze artistiche che spaziano dalla letteratura al teatro fino alle ormai celebri collaborazioni con gli Swans di Michael Gira. Sono passati quattro decenni dal debutto intitolato Walls, anni nei quali si è imposta grazie a uno stile vocale inquietante e a composizioni non ortodosse, elementi presenti anche in quest'ultimo lavoro, introdotto da The Holy Water. Sound minimale, a tratti etereo (Vired Serenade), costruito su ritmiche tribali, poche note arpeggiate di chitarra e synth impegnati a rinforzare le atmosfere delle tracce oppure a renderle impalpabili (Breathe). Il canto non segue le regole della melodia classica né un approccio lineare (Francesca Sun). Se nelle prime tracce risulta quasi "riconoscibile", e forse meno perturbante, ecco che vira improvvisamente verso atmosfere più oscure e sinistre, affidandosi a una sorta di lamento rituale in Choir And Night Fox, che probabilmente avrebbe compiaciuto anche l'incontentabile Stanley Kubrick di Eyes Wide Shut. Classe, gusto e imprevedibilità in questa nuova avventura, tumultuosa ma altrettanto delicata e, paradossalmente, rilassante.

hears Marvin Gaye's What's Goin' On and, yes, she's got lost, we all have – but there's still time. How Do We Get There From Here features the deep counterpoint of Ruby Amanfu, and it's a banner of a protest song. 'Til We Get It Right, about love, is a funky, JJ Cale-type groove; The Other Side Of Goodbye is infuriatingly touching. God does have a cameo role, but only as a bit of a lonesome cowboy.

CONSOULING SOUNDS. CD/DL/LP

The singer, multi-instrumentalist and experimentalist's 33rd solo album.

It's been a long journey from Jarboe's vocal debut, screaming on Swans' punitive 1986 single Time Is Money (Bastard), to this, the 55th album of her career overall. On Vireo Serenade, Jarboe weaves together the song of the vireo, a voluble but rarely sighted bird, with a loop of her voice and spartan string plucks. It's a haunting combination and a feeling of connectedness with nature runs through Choir And Night Fox, where distant cries, churchy organ, synth drones and the cawing of crows create an atmosphere of beauty and unease, like being lost in a twilight wood. A similar ambience continues through Breathe, with bells, panoramic keyboards and eerie susurrations. But the highlights are the more structured songs. On the title track Jarboe's sensual voice drifts through an uncanny soundworld towards "the sacred ground" and is swathed in strings on the sweetly melodic Francesca Sun.

Cat Fight

SILVER ARROW. CD/DL/LP

Excellent second album produced and released by Chris Robinson. Gloria Jones and Chuck Prophet guest.

Partly recorded at Euston Hall in Thetford, Norfolk, with walls covered in sea shells for soundproofing, the Jim Jones All Stars deliver plenty of trademark ramalama, feedback and distorted noise here, but also vintage-sounding R&B; the kind made by Charles Sheffield and Big Jay McNeely in the late '50s/early '60s that's played on the retro rockin' scene which Jones is a part of. So we get screaming saxes, ringing drums, thundering piano runs and frontman Jones at his most elemental/disreputable on tracks like Born 2 Ride, Drink Me and Luv U. I'm On Fire provides another standout, its voodoo doo wop sitting somewhere between Screamin' Jay Hawkins and Dion. Make It Rain's Stonesy jumble of gospel, blues and country is affecting too.

Interview with avant-garde artist Jarboe!

Originally coming to prominence as an integral part of New York's experimental rock band Swans, avant-garde artist Jarboe has had an equally exploratory solo career and has left a trail of albums that are equal parts challenging and accessible. Latest album Sightings (reviewed here) is no exception

Jarboe featuring Joy Von Spain / Dawn Terry / Sade Arellano (live at Strange Brew)

Strange angels pouring into the on-screen fractal shapes and patterned orbits. Jarboe silhouetted, long hair flowing over her face, upturned hands to her solemnly pointed words, occasionally raising them in alter-like reverence to the intensity

Jarboe

Coventry Just Dropped In 21/5/26

Ex-SWANS singer Jarboe emerged from the shadows like a spectre, layers of sound added almost imperceptibly until we were subsumed within its shell. The songs have a malleable quality and took on new form, as did Jarboe's voice, which has lost none of its range and texture, while the keys created crystalline sonic structures. Against a backdrop of swirling images, Jarboe presented an otherworldly aesthetic that altered the fabric of time. Closer, Illusory, came around far too soon, Jarboe disappearing into the ether, after something very special.
